

Health Savings Accounts

WHAT IS AN HSA?

Health Savings Accounts allow employees covered by a High Deductible Health Plan (HDHP) to open pre-tax savings accounts to pay for pre-qualified medical expenses. Employees can use a debit card to pay for medical expenses, including doctor visits, prescriptions, eye care, dental care, and much more. Money in the HSA can be kept in the account indefinitely and it continues to earn tax-free dividends.

What are the advantages?

Employees realize the following benefits:

- Reduced income tax liability with pre-tax deposits
- Low minimum opening deposit
- Tiered interest rates
- Pay medical costs with debit card or check
- Covers most medical, dental and prescription costs
- Portability if employee changes jobs
- Simple application process

Who is eligible?

- An employee must be covered simultaneously by a High Deductible Health Plan (an annual coverage deductible of at least $1,100 for an individual or $2,200 for families).
- The HSA enrollee cannot be covered by any other health insurance plan, such as a spouse's plan.
- The HSA enrollee must be under age 65.
- The HSA enrollee cannot be claimed as a dependent on someone else's federal income tax return.
- There are no income, employment or other age limits*

How much can I contribute?

The maximum yearly contribution is currently $2,850 for an individual and $5,650 for a family. The maximum HSA contribution is pro rated based on the number of months of the year that an employee is eligible. Employees over age 55 can make "catch-up contributions" in addition to normal contributions. The limit for catch-up contributions is currently $800 per year. The maximum annual out-of-pocket amounts for HDHP is now $5,500 for individuals and $11,000 for families. The government is also allowing a one-time-only rollover of Flexible Spending Accounts into HSAs and a once-in-a-lifetime rollover of IRA funds into an HSA (subject to annual HSA contribution limits.) An employer may contribute financially to an employee HSA as much or as little as they choose (while staying below the annual legal limit on the account of $2,850 or $5,650 for employees with family coverage).

What can HSA funds pay for?

HSA funds can be used for many traditional medical costs, including:

- Diagnosis and treatment of disease
- Routine medical visits
- Prescription drugs (and some non-prescription drugs)
- Eye care and dental care
- COBRA premiums
- Qualified long-term care services
- Many other costs such as acupuncture, Braille books, mid-wife services, seeing-eye dogs, and more.
